

Mandatory Training Seminars

Laboratory Safety Training – All students who work in labs/environments where chemicals are used must attend an initial training session. Go to Rutgers Environmental Health and Safety homepage <http://rehs.rutgers.edu> and click on the “Training” link to identify dates of upcoming seminars (registration not required). Once the initial training has been completed, refresher training must be completed annual. This can be satisfied by attending an initial training session in person or completing the refresher training on line.

Animal Use in Research – Regulations and Protocols – For all animal users. Go to the Laboratory Animal Services Home Page <http://las.rutgers.edu/> and click on the link “Training for research staff and students” to register for upcoming training seminars.

Radiation Safety – All students who work in labs that handle radioactive materials must attend an initial training session. Go to Rutgers Environmental Health and Safety homepage <http://rehs.rutgers.edu> and click on the “Training” link to identify dates of upcoming seminars (registration not required). Once the initial training has been completed, refresher training must be completed annual. This can be satisfied by attending an initial training session in person or completing the refresher training on line.
