COURSE DESCRIPTION:

In this course, you will be presented with basic principles of reproduction in domestic species. The emphasis here will be on the application of this information toward understanding the reproductive system and solving problems in reproduction. Information from non-farm species has contributed significantly to our understanding of reproductive physiology. Therefore, where appropriate, species other than cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, and horses will be discussed.

COURSE LEARNING GOALS: The students will

1) Comprehend the basic knowledge of the physiological mechanisms regulating reproduction in domestic animals, with additional examples from other species and humans. (PLG1 & 2).

Assessment: Three exams and 10 quizzes will cover the basics of endocrine and neurological control of reproduction, sexual behaviors, fertilization, pregnancy and parturition.

- 2) Assess the ways each species addresses the challenge of reproducing (PLG2).
 - Assessment: Exams quizzes, and homework will consist of questions that will involve species-specific reproductive strategies.
- 3) Understand the language of reproduction and the technological advances that impact both human and domestic animal reproduction (PLG2).

Assessment: Exams and quizzes will consist of questions that will focus on the technological advances over the past 100 years of reproductive sciences.

ASSIGNMENTS & ASSESSMENT:

EXAMS: 3 80-minute exams: 25% each x 3 = 75% using Top Hat. If you have a legitimate excuse for missing an exam, Dr. Roepke must be notified at least 24 h prior to the exam. All claims will be sent to the Dean of Students, Dean Michelle Jefferson, for verification.

QUIZZES: 10 quizzes are in-class (see below for schedule) and are each worth 1% of your grade for a total of 10%. Quizzes will be 10 true/false or multiple-choice questions using Top Hat. Quizzes will happen in the first 10 minutes of class. No exceptions. Information will be presented in class that is not in the text or on the website that will be included in quizzes and exams.

DIVERSITY STATEMENT

In an ideal world, science would be objective. However, much of science is subjective and is historically built on a small subset of privileged voices. I acknowledge that most of the readings for this course were authored by white men. Furthermore, the course often focuses on historically important reproductive, developmental, and toxicological experiments which were mostly conducted by white men. I acknowledge that it is possible that there may be both overt and covert biases in the material due to the lens with which it was written, even though the material is primarily of a scientific nature. Integrating a diverse set of experiences is important for a more comprehensive understanding of science. Please contact me (in person or electronically) or submit anonymous feedback if you have any suggestions to improve the quality of the course materials.

Furthermore, I would like to create a learning environment for my students that supports a diversity of thoughts, perspectives and experiences, and honors your identities (including race, gender, class, sexuality, religion, ability, etc.) To help accomplish this:

- I acknowledge that we are on the traditional homelands of the Lenni Lenape peoples.
- If you have a name and/or set of pronouns that differ from those that appear in your official Rutgers records, please let me know.
- If you feel like your performance in the class is being impacted by your experiences outside of class, please don't hesitate to come and talk with me. I want to be a resource for you. Remember that you can also submit anonymous feedback (which will lead to me making a general announcement to the class, if necessary to address your concerns).
- I (like many people) am still in the process of learning about diverse perspectives and identities. If something was said in class (by anyone) that made you feel uncomfortable, please talk to me about it (Again, anonymous feedback is always an option).

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

The university's policy on Academic Integrity is available at http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academicintegrity-policy. The principles of academic integrity require that a student:

- properly acknowledge and cite all use of the ideas, results, or words of others.
- properly acknowledge all contributors to a given piece of work.
- make sure that all work submitted as his or her own in a course or other academic activity is produced without the aid of impermissible materials or impermissible collaboration.
- obtain all data or results by ethical means and report them accurately without suppressing any results inconsistent with his or her interpretation or conclusions.
- treat all other students in an ethical manner, respecting their integrity and right to pursue their educational goals without interference. This requires that a student neither facilitate academic dishonesty by others nor obstruct their academic progress.
- uphold the canons of the ethical or professional code of the profession for which he or she is preparing. Adherence to these principles is necessary in order to ensure that
 - everyone is given proper credit for his or her ideas, words, results, and other scholarly accomplishments.
 - all student work is fairly evaluated and no student has an inappropriate advantage over others.
 - the academic and ethical development of all students is fostered.

• the reputation of the University for integrity in its teaching, research, and scholarship is maintained and enhanced.

Failure to uphold these principles of academic integrity threatens both the reputation of the University and the value of the degrees awarded to its students. Every member of the University community therefore bears a responsibility for ensuring that the highest standards of academic integrity are upheld.
